Client: Senior Executive Team of a major city's electric power provider.

Challenge: Assess and redesign a strategically important CIP program.

Actionable Knowledge® solutions:

- 360° program stakeholder interviews
- Multiple key asset assessments
- Comprehensive report of findings
- CIP program redesign & turnaround

Background: Executives of a strategic metropolitan region's electric power system had concerns regarding the efficiency and effectiveness of their critical infrastructure protection program. They retained Flynt Group to provide an independent assessment. The project was of national consequence, supported a financial district and a strategic, ocean shipping port vital to Pacific Rim trade, and was funded by the Department of Homeland Security. Flynt Group conducted detailed analysis of the program, including interviews with all internal and external stakeholders and on-site inspections of nine large-scale key assets. Management was provided over sixty findings impacting on protection of the infrastructure with detailed recommendations for action. The client's senior executive team lauded Flynt Group's services as substantially improving the protection of this vital system supplying electricity to over half a million customers.

"Flynt Group supports us with a variety of security and anti-terrorism services assisting in the protection of our critical assets and facilities. For a number of years they have consistently delivered world-class performance in meeting our needs with cost-effective and responsive expertise. We have been delighted by the quality and value of their work."

- Chief Security Officer, a major regional electric power firm
